

This poem is the result of my modeling how to write a villanelle to a student. I wanted to show the thought process, the non-linear way the mind works when writing a poem and at the same time the discipline required when creating a poem in a specific, demanding form.